

Students Launched Book

Students launched their own book at a ceremony for parents.

A group of students who are part of Feversham's First Story group launched a book containing their work at an evening event for parents.

First Story is a writing group which encourages students to release their creative skills supported by a professional author. Poet Kate Fox guides the students in their after-school sessions where they produce short stories and poems. The group has had great success this year with students being shortlisted and winning national writing competitions, and one student was invited to a reception in Downing Street.

The event took place in the hall at Peel Park Primary School and was attended by parents, siblings and friends of the students involved. After a short introduction to First Story students then performed one of their pieces.

An interval gave parents, staff and students the opportunity to mingle and to buy the book, titled Into Our World, over some refreshments.

"I am so proud of my daughter. Not only did she write a wonderful poem but she had the confidence to perform it in front of all these people," parent of a year 7 student.
